POLITICAL OBLIVION
DESERVED

Forrest City
Times-Herald

For too long the presumption has been that a politician is on the side of the people when he mounts the stump and goes after business. The important thing has been the crusade, not the facts. In the many complex issues that now surround industrial operations, intelligent use of facts is the touchstone of wise public policies upon which both business and millions of consumers must depend.

The Marietta Georgia, Daily Journal reports a typical case of the kind of misinformation that hurts both the public and the industry. It tells of a candidate for public office who made the statement that utilities don't need rate increases. On the contrary, he charged there could be a rate decrease if utilities "...would stop spending so much money on advertising. Why advertise when you have a monopoly?" The charge was also made that 25 per cent of electric bills paid by electric company customers goes for advertising expenses of the power company. The journal noted that instead of 25 per cent power companies in the state of Georgia spend something less than one per cent of their total revenues on advertising. Much of this advertising has to do with environmental questions and conservation of power—and an explanation of the operating problems and progress of local power companies.

So far as rates go, we are living in a period when the costs of inflation call for higher rates. The public has the choice of paying a few cents more for vital services such as electric power or foregoing those services. In making this choice, the public should have the help of the best and most accurate information available. Pursuing the ancient practice of hamstringing an industry, merely for the sake of votes, should in this day and age guarantee a one-way ticket to political oblivion via the ballot box.

Air Force drops charges

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Air Force has dropped its attempt to discharge Capt. Susan Struck, a nurse who gave birth out of wedlock.

The Air Force gave no reason for the action taken Friday. Its effect will be to block a possibly unfavorable ruling from the Supreme Court which had agreed to hear Capt. Struck's charge that Air Force regulations were discriminatory.

Government lawyers are expected to ask the court to drop the case as moot.

Miss Struck, 28, became pregnant while serving at Cam Ranh Bay, Vietnam, in 1970. She gave birth to a girl Dec. 3, 1970, and gave the child up for adoption.

At the time, regulations required discharge of any pregnant woman unless the pregnancy was terminated. The edict was changed in March, 1971, to permit waiver in individual cases. Capt. Struck was denied a waiver in June, 1971, while others were granted.

Friday's action granted a waiver to the nurse who is currently stationed at Minot Air Force Base, N.D.

Her appeal to the high court maintained that the regulation unconstitutionally singled out pregnant women and Catholics like herself.

Camp David: Nixon's 4th White House

CAMP DAVID, Md. (AP) — President Nixon is transforming rustic Camp David into his fourth White House where he says he will make his biggest decisions and write his most important speeches.

Off and on for 30 years, the complex of wooden cabins and lodges set on a wooded crest of the Catoctin Mountains of western Maryland has served six presidents.

Now Nixon says he'll take advantage of the isolated mountaintop as a place for some of his most important work. "It is easier for me to get on top of the job" at Camp David, he said.

Through the years, Camp David has been the site of a number of historic summit conferences. Once honeymooners used it as a hideaway spot.

Though rustic, Camp David is far from rough. There are comfortable quarters, a full staff of Navy enlisted men and recreational facilities ranging from a heated pool to snowmobiles.

Nixon has already used Camp David more than any of his predecessors, including Franklin D. Roosevelt, who first used it as a World War II hideaway.

But in his first term, Nixon also put into service an ocean-side Western White House in San Clemente, Calif., and a bay-side Florida White House in Key Biscayne to augment the traditional presidential residence in Washington.

Now preparing to open his second term, Nixon says there will be even more activities, meetings and major decisions at Camp David over the next four years.

At the retreat, 65 miles north of Washington (25 minutes by helicopter), Nixon works before a massive stone fireplace, apparently inspired by a splendid view of the mountain.

Complete privacy and seclusion is provided at Camp David, which covers a restricted area of 134 acres within a 6,000-acre tract of national and state parkland.

When Nixon is in residence, a shingled entrance sign announces "Camp David." But no casual tourist driving up from Thurmont can get close and "no stopping signs" warn off sightseers.

Camp David is operated by the Navy, guarded by Marines, many of them Vietnam veterans, who patrol with attack dogs. And it is surrounded by an ominous and forbidding circle of two high steel chain link electrified fences, topped by two-foot high circles of gleaming concertina barbed wire. At night, the perimeter is outlined with floodlights.

Nevertheless, the country atmosphere dominates.

Education Dept. denies claim of misspent funds

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — A claim by the Office of Education that 12 Arkansas school districts misspent $618,548 in federal money intended for educational programs for poor children was denied Friday by the state Education Department.

The department sent the Office of Education a report that defends the 12 districts against the claim.

The Office of Education has asked the state to repay the money, but state Education Director A. W. Ford said the report showed that each of the expenditures was proper under federal guidelines that existed during the five-year period at issue. The period was from Sept. 10, 1968, through June 30, 1970.

The districts received the money under Title I of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965. The Office of Education contended that the districts spent the funds for programs that did not qualify under Title I guidelines for the federal aid. Ford said the amount of the Office of Education questions represents only a half of one per cent of the total Title I money received in the state during the five-year period.

In a letter to Robert W. Wheeler, associate commissioner of the Office of Education, Ford said state approval of the districts' Title I project activities was based on federal regulations and program guides available at the time.

The districts named by the Office of Education and the amounts claimed were Blytheville ($304,308); El Dorado ($18,348); Fort Smith ($22,708); Hector ($5,271); Marvell ($36,081); North Little Rock ($27,749); Texarkana ($121,628) and Washington ($22,088).

Miners vote under tight security

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Balloting for the top offices of the 200,000-member United Mine Workers Union entered its second day today in a national election marked by the tightest security many miners could recall.

"They got it so tight it looks like we're a bunch of damn criminals," said Harry Fain, 71, a 47-year veteran of the mines who showed up to vote Friday at Wheelwright in Eastern Kentucky's District 30.

Fain said he has voted in every UMW election since 1923 and had never seen such close examination of miners' identification and UMW credentials.

West Virginia is in moonshine business

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP) — The State of West Virginia has gone into the business of selling moonshine.

The state Alcohol Beverage Control Commission has stocked several of its stores with two brands of old-fashioned white corn whiskey, "guaranteed to be less than 30 days old."

"One of the main reasons we decided to put it on the shelves," said ABC Commissioner Richard Barber, "is that many people just like the taste of moonshine. We had quite a bit of demand for it."

The two brands sold in about 60 ABC stores are Booneshine, a 100-proof whiskey manufactured in Cincinnati, and Georgia Moon, an 85-proof variety produced in the Peach State.

Booneshine, sold in plastic retails at $2.06, while a fifth of Georgia Moon sells for $4.41.

"It's distilled just like regular whiskey," Barber said. "The big difference is that white whiskey isn't put in charred barrels to age. Supposedly the longer whiskey ages, the smoother it gets."

Barber reported that sales are brisk, averaging 70 cases a month of both brands. "We're having a problem keeping a good stock on it, because of the suppliers not having enough," he said.

Although the state's product costs about twice as much as illegal "white lightning," Barber noted that it has one advantage over home brew.

"That stuff can make you blind or kill you."

By GEORGE SMITH

I enjoy perusing the contents of heady medical journals, hoping I will recognize a medical term stored in my memory banks during pre-pharmacy days at an east Texas cow college.

It was about this time last year that I borrowed a 1,000 page medical journal (circa 1912) from a friend, an entertaining book titled "Vitalogy — or The Encyclopedia of Health and Home", which, after a cursory examination, I took to be a humorous satire on man's frailties and humors.

But the authors — Drs. Geo. P. Wood and E. H. Ruddock — were strait-laced in their proclamations of the causes of diseases and the cures for said afflictions.

Picking up the heavyweight, illustrated, literary behemoth was sufficient to cause a hernia (cure listed on Page 313) but I chanced having the "horrible malady" to find out the following:

++ Remedy for black eye: Immediately after the eye has been struck, with force enough to make it black, apply a cloth, wet with water, as hot as you can stand it, in which you must put two teaspoonfuls of sal ammoniac. Do not put on leeches.

Also listed as "very superior means of removing discoloration" are applications of raw beef and brandy. Raw beef is also recommended for cases of frostbite.

++ Drowning: Use Sylvester's Ready Method. "Persons who have been under water over two hours have been restored." However, the journal failed to describe Sylvester's method.

++ Removing freckles: Make a paste of English mustard and lemon juice, apply to the face four nights in succession. The freckles will generally disappear and likewise the redness caused by the English mustard and lemon juice.

Also, take a half teaspoonful of rain water and two teaspoonfuls of powdered borax and wash the parts twice a day. This is a never-failing remedy for removing freckles of people possessing certain textures of skin (unspecified). Also, "the milky juice of the stem of the dandelion will remove freckles," the book continued.

++ Wart removal: Sleep in vinegar the inner rim of a lemon for 24 hours, and apply it to the wart. Also, "The juice of the marigold is another excellent means for removing warts."

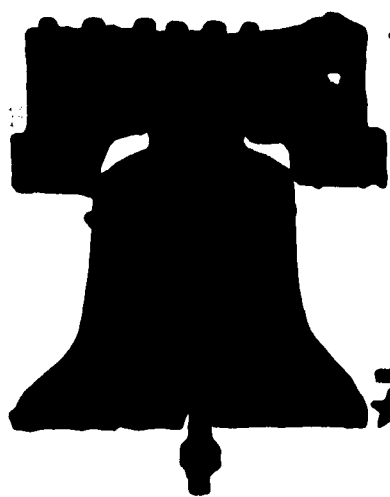

++ Insomnia: Sleep on a pillow stuffed with hops, and "sleep with the head toward the north."

It also suggests eating "plentifully of onion soup two or three times a week."

Too much sleep, however, is bad, the book says. "Too much sleep in a warm bed weakens the nerves, disorders the brain, produces peevishness, leads to apoplexy, palsy, excites palpitations, and relaxes the system by over-perpiration."

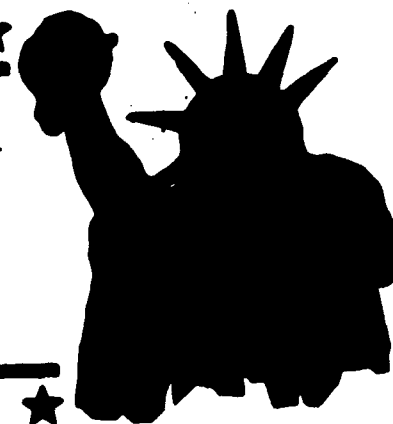

Vitalogy does not only confine itself to relating simply the cures for ailments. It lists the method by which persons may live to be 75 years of age or older.

The secret? What you drink and eat. This is the way the book puts it: "When you drink the water that holds impurities or mineral solids suspended in it, these solids will as surely leave deposits in your system as they do in your teakettle. The principal reason why men become diseased or die sooner is because of the deposit of animal soil or insoluble solids in the organs of life. "You are what you eat and drink."

"The God who gave us life, gave us Liberty at the same time"

This young businessman fought for freedom

PAUL REVERE is one of the best known American Colonial Patriots. His famous midnight ride inspired Longfellow to write "Paul Revere's Ride", which every schoolboy learned at an early age.

But Paul Revere was also known as a good businessman. Son of a silversmith, he learned the trade so well that many of his works are regarded as masterpieces.

He played an important part in the famous Boston Tea Party, fought against tyranny in any form, and knew the importance of freedom and free enterprise.

He cast bullets and cannons during the war, and later, church bells. In 1808 he invented a process for rolling copper. Paul Revere was truly one of America's first champions of freedom and free enterprise...the two things we still cherish today, some 200 years later.

The oldest expert was telling about some of the things that had happened to him during his 40 years of play. He said, "Most of the things were the fault of my partners, but here is one where I must take some share of the blame."

"The game was rubber bridge. North and West were fair players. East was one of those individuals who loved to play bridge but had a faculty of doing the worst possible thing at every chance to go wrong."

"I didn't have to pass to three no-trump. You can see that six in either minor suit was in but I had no idea what my partner might put on the table so when he went to three no-trump, I passed."

"You made three no-trump, didn't you?" asked someone.

"No, I didn't," was the reply. "I ducked the first heart but had to win the continuation. I could have gone right over to dummy and taken the diamond finesse but I didn't know where the king was and I had an extra chance to bring home my contract."

"I played my ace of clubs to see if I might just drop the king from East. Sure enough, East did drop the king. Now the rest of the clubs appeared to be good. I led a second club and played dummy's 10. East discarded a heart and West asked, 'No clubs, partner?'"

"East replied that he didn't have any, whereupon West asked him to look carefully. Eventually East produced the jack of clubs which won the trick. He had exposed a heart and had to lead it and I was down two."

HELEN HELP US!

by Helen Bottel

Mothers and Fathers: LET GO!

DEAR HELEN AND SUE:

I'm going on 18, and my parents still won't let me date. My father has an idea if I walk out the door with a boy I'll come back pregnant. They say "It isn't you we distrust, it's those sneaky males!" Sometimes I wonder if they'd rather I'd date girls.

They let one boy visit me for about four months, and after they had spent all that time in the living room, watching him and me, they finally let me go to a walk-in movie with him—but only if my younger brother went along. The guy gave up.

My senior year is one-third over, and I won't be able to go to any of the dances or parties. A boy is interested in me now, but what can I say? — "My parents wouldn't let me date, even if they had known you all their lives." And that will be the end of that.

Can either of you possibly think of a way out of this mess?

—DESPERATE

DEAR DESPERATE:

The long term way out is plain: When you're on your own (and you can leave home at age 18) you'll make your decisions. But we hope your parents will swing around to reason while you're still in high school.

Ask them why they distrust the way they brought you up. Are they so sure they haven't instilled right standards that you'll play bed for the first guy you meet in the dark? And while you've got them off-center bring in a relative or friend who will plead your case.

If they don't understand now that overprotection is worse than overpermissiveness, they will next year, when they may have lost you. —HELEN AND SUE

DEAR RAP:

Can male and female ever be "just friends"? Sure they can, and who knows better than I, who lived with a girl for six months on a "friends" basis. That is, we shared a two-bedroom apartment, and we each had our love interest elsewhere, off and on.

No one would believe it, so we just said nothing, but the fact was we were good pals and didn't want to spoil it. Besides she was engaged to a guy overseas.

Oh yes, I said "off and on" didn't I? Well, it turns out the guy broke the engagement and I discovered I wasn't so crazy about the girl I thought I loved, and one thing led to another, so now we are still sharing the apartment as —MR. AND MRS. X.

HELEN AND SUE:

I'm 24, married happily, and the mother of a two-year-old daughter. I too know that man and woman can be "just friends." I work nights and, on occasion, stop off with a male friend for a drink and a game of pool before I come home.

This has been going on for almost a year and I won't deny that sex might have been thought of, but that's all it was—just a thought. I love my husband very much, and though I can't speak for my male friend, I am content to leave things as they are.

It's great to know a guy who considers you as a person and not a possible conquest. And it CAN happen. —JUST FRIENDS

NOTE FROM SUE:

This would work, perhaps, when you have someone to go home to. But how about the guy and girl who are "just friends" and leave each other with only a "Bye" and a handshake?

I'm beginning to see by the letters on the subject that everyone needs comforting — to feel that he (or she) is very special to ONE person. That's why "just friendship" either goes into a deeper relationship or tapers off — at least among the young and unattached.

(GOT A PROBLEM? Or a subject for discussion, two-generation style? Direct your questions to either Sue or Helen Bottel — or both, in care of this newspaper, if you want a combination mother-daughter answer.)

Questions on hermaphrodism

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb—I realize sex used to be a closed book for most people, practiced but not publicized. I've heard a lot of old wives' tales. My question concerns hermaphrodism. I have never seen much published on this and I think many people would like to know what it is. I have never seen one, but I've read that they are not so uncommon. I know the clitoris enlarges, but is that all?

Dr. Lamb

To what size or length does it grow and is it functional? Are there any remedies, operations or otherwise? Does this condition have an emotional effect on the person?

Dear Reader—Hermaphrodism really refers to having part of the sexual organs of both the male and the female. This takes many varied forms and is not restricted to just changes in the clitoris or external genitalia. There is no way to describe specifically to you the exact characteristics of a hermaphrodite, because there are so many variations. For example, a hermaphrodite may have both ovaries and testicles, or at least parts of them. There may be parts of the female reproductive tract in the presence of male genitalia.

The situation is compounded by underdeveloped sexual organs which may cause confusion. To illustrate, a male may not have completed normal development before birth and may be mistakenly thought to be a female at delivery. Such an individual may be raised as a female when in reality, sexually, the individual is a male with underdeveloped and abnormally formed sexual organs.

It might help to set down some of the principles of sexuality. The egg from the female contains one sex chromosome, labeled X chromosome. The sperm from the male are either X or Y. When fertilization occurs, the chromosomes are paired. The developing fetus, then, may have an XX chromosome pattern or an XY chromosome pattern. All developing XX babies are genetically females. All developing XY babies are genetically males. That is, they either carry the blueprint to develop into a female or a male in their developmental process.

Now things get a little more complicated. If enough male hormone is formed by the early cells of the developing fetus, it will develop male characteristics. This is true regardless of whether the fetus started out being an XX female or an XY male baby. This is why the hormone production during the pregnancy period is so important. It also influences the activation of basic sex cells in the brain which we all have. Male hormone in the development phase activates the development of male brain cells and its absence allows for the development of female brain cells. If a developing female baby is exposed to too much male hormone, she will develop abnormally. Likewise, if a developing male baby doesn't have enough male hormone in the process, he will not develop completely.

Now you can add to hormone mistakes the possible abnormal formation of the X and Y sex chromosomes. The combination of chromosome patterns and hormonal influences determines the final outcome, and it can be as mixed as there are multiples of the different sexual parts of the male and female tract.

Obviously, there is no correct treatment for these problems. It depends on what kind of difficulty is present to begin with. Treatment is most successful if the problem is recognized early, preferably at birth or soon after. Optimal methods of treatment can be brought to bear during infancy and the early development period of the child, rather than attempting to do something once the individual has reached the stage of puberty or matured into an adult. In general, it is easier to transform such an individual to the female pattern, although it may not be possible to in-able her to have children; for example, if there are no ovaries present. It is much more difficult to do something about developing functional external male genitalia, but each one of these problems is an individual matter. If the condition hasn't been recognized early in life, then psycho-social aspects have to be considered as well.

Of course, there are tremendous emotional effects on the individual. A woman has a "female personality" in part because of her genetic make-up and her hormones. Her mood changes throughout the menstrual cycle because of changes in the level of female hormone. The female brain runs the female menstrual cycle. This is related to the development of the female brain cells and their organization under hormonal influences. Likewise, there is a male brain with activated male brain cells.

Although there are some individuals in the current social scene who would like to abolish the difference between males and females, that just isn't the way nature made us. There really is a difference between men and women, both in terms of external decoration and how the brain works. For those who don't believe this, they should have a course in animal behavior. Male animals behave differently than female animals. Tom cats are more apt to caress than are pussy cats. Administering male hormone to an animal causes it to become more aggressive in its behavior. You might even say that the male hormone is the aggression hormone. There is a good reason why centuries ago, captors found that they could make their captives more docile by castrating them.

Of course, aggressive behavior is also related to other factors including training, cultural conditioning, and numerous psycho-social or environmental influences. Thus the final outcome of sexuality and behavior is related to genetic factors, hormonal or chemical factors, and finally environmental and social factors. Considering all the multiple complex inputs in determining sexuality, it's remarkable that things go as well as they do. (NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

PERSONAL FINANCE

By CARLTON SMITH

The words "tax exempt," to anyone as harassed as the American taxpayer is today, exert a powerful appeal to the emotions, and what is rational can be ignored.

That's the only possible explanation of why so many people are investing in municipal bonds when they shouldn't.

The recent rush to sink spare family cash into the tax-exempt has a predictable, attractive to the usual fringe of unscrupulous, shady and downright dishonest peddlers, and many innocent investors are being put through the wringer. Examples are the Memphis scandal, where authorities moved in last year to break up the fun, and Florida, where the state has had to issue a leaflet telling citizens how to avoid getting burned.

There are several traps in which the unwary may set a foot. First, there are different kinds of municipals, or so-called municipals — and considerable variation as to investment quality.

Two types of bonds sold by some dealers as municipals raise questions about whether they are true municipal bonds, and whether they are in fact tax exempt, according to the McGraw-Hill publication, "Personal Business."

One is the "industrial revenue" bond, whose only purpose is to raise money for offering inducements to corporations for locating industrial facilities in the area.

The other is the "arbitrage bond," issued to raise money which some governmental unit or agency hopes to invest at a profit over the interest it pays to the bondholders.

Bucks avenge setback

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Oscar Robertson reached a milestone...and Kareem Abdul-Jabbar reached up, over and around the New York Knicks.

With Robertson scoring 19 points and attaining the 20,000 career point total and Abdul-Jabbar pouring in 40 points, grabbing 16 rebounds, handing out seven assists and blocking three shots, the Milwaukee Bucks humiliated the Knicks 100-74 Friday night and avenged their most embarrassing setback of the National Basketball Association season.

Two weeks ago, the Knicks shocked Milwaukee, overcoming a 10-point deficit with 5:30 remaining by scoring the game's last 19 points for an 87-88 victory over the stunned Bucks.

Friday night, the Bucks were not to be denied. With Jabbar hitting for 24 points in the first half, Milwaukee took leads of 24-19 after one period and 44-38 at halftime. Milwaukee, which led 71-62 after three periods, broke open the game with 10 straight points, six by Abdul-Jabbar, early in the fourth quarter.

Robertson, in his 13th NBA season, became only the second player to attain the 20,000-point plateau when he made a three-point play with three seconds left in the third period. Only Wilt Chamberlain of the Los Angeles Lakers has scored more points than Robertson.

In other NBA games, Detroit topped Cleveland 114-113, Phoenix topped Golden State 118-108, Chicago beat Kansas City-Omaha 100-97 in overtime, Atlanta defeated Los Angeles 114-100 in overtime, Boston downed Philadelphia 103-90 and Baltimore whipped Houston 103-88.

In the American Basketball Association, it was: Carolina 103, New York 99; Kentucky 127, Memphis 107, and Dallas 123, Indiana 117.

Ladycats win 6th victory

By RICKY FAWCETT

Star Sports Writer

Using an invulnerable defensive trio, the Hope Ladycats kept their seasonal slate clean with their sixth straight win of the year, a 41-10 whitewash over the Emmet Raglettes.

Hope started off slowly in the scoring department, netting only 12 first quarter points, but with the superb defense by the guards it really never mattered.

Tallying first on a field goal by Gigi Gladney, the Ladycat offense appeared to be on the move, but only ten more points could be mounted during the remaining period with Emmet only hitting four.

At any time, the forwards seemingly would start hitting, but ironically only six points were netted. The only good thing appeared to be that the Ladycat guards blunted Emmet, allowing no points, thus giving Hope an 18-4 halftime margin.

Although the score possibly indicates a tough battle, the Ladycats were in no trouble and the subs all saw action in the second half, giving the starters a rest.

Pogo Griffin started the scoring with Bonnie Willis and Susan Henley following suit, while at the other end of the court the guards were still containing their counterparts.

Only after the game had entered the final period did Emmet break the ice to score, although trailing 36-6. With the game now tucked away, the last of the reserves hit the court and finished up the game.

Leading scorers for Hope were McCain and Henley with eight each, and Willis and Gladney with six apiece, although the forwards did break into the scoring mark.

Guards seeing action and deserving credit for a fine performance were Mona Rowe, Betty Honeycutt, Judy Reynolds, Carol Frazier, Sharon Rateliff, Melissa Reece, and Bonnie Roy.

Bobkittens down Cubs

By RICKY FAWCETT

The Hope Bobkittens swept to their second victory of the young season with a 41-30 win over the Prescott Cubs. The Kitty Cats, once again a victim of shooting ineffectiveness, lost to the Prescott Junior Girls 39-18 in Thursday's night action.

The Kittens dropped behind early and trailed 12-6 at the first quarters close.

Led by Jimmy Williams and Cary Mitchell, the Kittens made up the difference and ruled 24-17 at halftime.

The Cubs charged early in the third quarter to take the lead, but four points from Dennis Washington was all Hope needed to retain that lead, 38-27.

The Kittens scored six consecutive points before Prescott could manage a basket and coasted to victory, 41-30.

Williams was the games top scorer with 16 points, while Mitchell managed 12. Vernon Washington hit 10 for the Cubs.

Earlier the Kitty Cats were overpowered by a strong Prescott team and lost 38-18.

The Kitty Cats took an early 4-0 lead, but from there it was all Prescott.

Karen Baker topped all scorers with 17 points and Kathy McCain led Hope with 8. Although they were beaten, the Kitty Cat guards, Judy Clark, Tammy Endaley, and Georgia Bell, played a very courageous game.

Action for tonight will be in Emmet as the Lady Cats and B Bruins take on the Emmet senior teams.

A Miami offensive end leaps to receive a forward pass thrown against Florida State. Before returning to the ground he flips the ball backwards to a teammate who drops it. A Florida State player falls on the ball.

The official should:

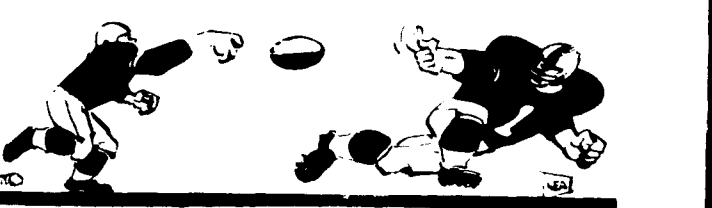

1. Declare the pass incomplete.
2. Award the ball to Florida State for recovering a backward pass.
3. Penalize Miami for an illegal pass.

Answer: Number 1. Declare the pass incomplete.

Rule (2-2-2-6) To catch, intercept or recover a ball, a player who jumps to make a catch, interception or recovery, must have the ball in his possession when he first returns to the ground in-bounds.

A ball cannot be passed unless it is in player possession.

MAJOR HOOPLE'S FOOTBALL FORECAST

Hoople sees Auburn, Notre Dame pulling big surprises Saturday

By MAJOR AMOS B. HOOPLE

Upset Specialist

Egad, friends, there is slim pickin' for the collegiate football followers this weekend but what the schedule lacks in quantity is more than made up for in quality—um-kumph!

In the 13 clashes on tap are such great classics as Alabama vs. Auburn; Army vs. Navy; Southern California vs. Notre Dame; Georgia vs. Georgia Tech; Oklahoma vs. Oklahoma State, and Florida vs. Miami. 'Tis a football filibert's dream come true!

As we go into the last big weekend of the regular schedule there are only two major powers with unblemished records—Southern California (10-0) and Alabama (10-0)—and after Saturday—kaff-kaff—there will be none. Yes, dear readers, that's what's in the cards!

Chickasaw Bob, our man from Mobile, reports the Auburn Tigers will be loaded for bears — heh-heh — that would be Bear Bryant's 'Bama boys, and when the smoke has settled at Birmingham the Tigers will have stemmed the Crimson Tide, 17-14—har-rumph!

It will be much the same story at Los Angeles where Ara Parseghian's Fightin' Irish (8-1) will surprise the No. 1 rated Trojans. In a free-scoring fray the Irish will prevail, 24-21—hak-kaff!

The annual Service Classic will be a slam-bang affair once more as Army goes all-out to whip Navy in their 73rd engagement. The Hoople System gives the Mules the edge, 22-15.

In 66 previous meetings with Georgia Tech the Georgia Bulldogs have won 32 while losing 29 and battling to a standoff in five others. With the homefield advantage going for them, the Bulldogs will make it 33 wins over the Yellow Jackets, 10-7.

Meanwhile the Oklahoma Sooners had best forget their upcoming Sugar Bowl date with Penn State and concentrate on old rival Oklahoma State. The Cowboys are dangerous but our information indicates the Sooners will finish ahead by an 18-10 count.

Florida and Miami of Florida have met 33 times on the gridiron and the Gators have won 16 times with the Miami Hurricanes taking the other 17. This Saturday's clash will even the record at 17-all as the Gators win, 28-21, at Gainesville.

Johnny Weissmuller, five wives and $1 million later: 'It's been a ball'

By IRA BERKOW

NEA Sports Editor

NEW YORK—(NEA)—“If I had any advice to give Mark Spitz,” said Johnny Weissmuller, running a hand through his long orange hair, “it would be to get humble, to come back down to earth.”

Weissmuller recalled a moment at Munich when he sat in the stands with Spitz's parents. Spitz's mother held a bunch of flowers. Spitz had just won one of his seven Olympic gold medals.

“He walked by just below us and I called, ‘Hey Mark, your mother’s got flowers for you.’ He didn’t even turn around. That’s the kind of kid he is, I guess. I don’t know, maybe he hypnotizes himself.”

However, Weissmuller, at a New York restaurant recently to receive the Dewars Merit Award as one of the 50 top athletes of all-time—undefeated for 10 years, winner of five Olympic swimming gold medals in the 1924 and 1928 Olympics—said he understood how a guy can get cocky.

“But I got it knocked out of me pretty quick,” he said. “It was early in my career and I had already set a bunch of world records. This one race, it was a 200-meter free style. I walked past each opponent as they lined up and whispered, ‘Where you going to finish, second? third? fourth?’ My coach, Bill Bachrach, he wanted to know what I had said. I told him. He ordered me to go back and apologize to each one of those guys. I did. But I was so mad I won the race by 10 yards.”

Weissmuller talked about a recent magazine article, “The Selling of Spitz,” which said Mark Spitz is being marketed by businessmen who do not allow Spitz or his family to speak to reporters or business associates about Mark's life.

“Isn’t it awful,” said Weissmuller, scrunching up his nose. “But I guess you do have to be careful about business. I was never very good at it. I’m a good guy. People used to say sign here, and I signed.

My first agent in Hollywood got me into trouble. “He cost me half a million. I’m still trying to sort that mess out with the Internal Revenue Service. And it’s been years.”

Weissmuller says he is now semi-retired, but remains active in promoting Johnny Weissmuller swimming pools and is director of the Swimming Hall of Fame in Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

He is nearly 70 years old (“68,” he corrects, “70 sounds so old”) and says he still swims about two hours a day three days a week. “I just fool around in the water,” he said. “But a year ago I jumped in for the hell of it and broke a minute for 100 meters. I did it in 59.4 seconds. No one my age can do that. So I’m still a champ.”

He laughed, as he does often, his front teeth slightly touching his lower lip. Although his hair is dyed and his face has an easy sag, he still carries his weight well over his 6-4 frame. He says he weighs about 210, some 20 pounds over his competitive weight.

A white silk kerchief was knotted around his thick but somewhat wattled neck, and an undershirt peeked up from under the salmon-colored shirt that covered his still huge chest.

“I’ve had some ups and downs,” he said, “but it’s been a ball. I didn’t have much formal education but I went around the world six times. I’ve had five wives and each experience was like going to college.”

He also had some trouble with alcohol—“bloody Marys are still my soup”—but he can still let out a savage jungle yell “when I’m full of beer.”

His high-pitched jungle yell may be his most famous single possession now. For 19 years he was Tarzan, of the Apes and of the Movies. By 1947 he had literally outgrown his Tarzan loincloth. And for the next 10 years he stayed fully clothed as Jungle Jim.

He went into the swimming pool business after that. But he says he still gets letters from all over the world: “Egypt, Russia, Africa—they want pictures—and they send it to Johnny Weissmuller, U.S.A., and I get them at my home in Titusville, Florida. Amazing, isn’t it?”

“Kids still see those Tarzan movies,” he continued. “I’ve got seven grandchildren. Half of ‘em don’t believe I’m Tarzan. We see one of my movies on television and I’ll say, ‘That’s me.’ And they’ll say, ‘Oh no, that’s not you, grandpa.’”

He chuckled, and repeated,

“It’s been a ball. I was a kid from Chicago who was too poor to own swimming trunks until I was 12. But I’ve spent a million dollars and I’ll spend another million before I’m through. And, you know, I was fortunate to be a swimmer. That’s one sport you can do forever. You can be a hundred years old and wheel yourself to the pool and fall in. And the older you get the warmer the water becomes—I mean, it feels better.”

“Swimming clears your lungs out, too, makes you able to yell louder.” He let out a sort of subdued yell, which turned only a few heads in the restaurant. He chuckled.

Not long after, a waitress came by, asked Weissmuller for his autograph. He pulled out a pre-autographed postcard-like photograph of him swimming. He carries a batch of them inside his sport jacket pocket for just such occasions which, he says, are numerous.

The waitress recalled that she had seen Weissmuller do comic diving at the 1930 World’s Fair in New York.

“When you get a certain age,” she said, “all you have is memories.”

“Make some more, honey,” said Weissmuller, with a naughty but nice wink.
